

Past Meeting Record - Nursing Practice 2020

Dr Murray R Berkowitz

Associate dean of Philadelphia College of Osteopathic Medicine , USA

A heartfelt thank to you all on behalf of the members of the conference committee for making Nursing Practice a successful learning forum in 2020 to our keynote speakers, plenary speakers, business leaders, students, associations, media representatives and guests!

The 31st International Conference on Nursing Practice, hosted by AAC, took place during July 08-09, 2020. Benevolent response and constructive participation were received from International Journals Editorial Board members, as well as from leading scientists , researchers, medical professionals, students and health care industry experts who made this event a success.

The conference was characterised by the participation of young and energetic scholars, corporate leaders and creative student groups from over five nations that pushed this event onto the road of progress. The conference experimented with modern retroviral studies through a series of independent workshops.

Nursing Practice 2020 was host to an amalgamation of peerless speakers who educated the audience in their abilities and addressed various new-catched subjects related to nursing and health care.

Participants of the conference shared their opinions on the topic "Enlighten the unexplored challenges of Medical mothers during the Covid 19 pandemic." It was both a reflectional and insightful event for the conference attendees.

AAC would like to express sincere appreciation to the chairs / co-chairs and organizers of the session who have made this project a great success and meaningful opportunity for research participants, scholars, health care professionals, business and community leaders.
