

Social entrepreneurship Project Practices and Pharmaceutical Commercial Products for Healing

Abraham Oluwasegun Onayiga*

Interdenominational School Of Theology and Projects, South Africa

Abstract

Is there a way to escape Covid-19 or illnesses of urgent pandemic and move the important things back to the centre of our lives? Is there a way to recapture the vitally crucial things in life? Checking through the scripture, God responds to Israelites' distress by providing quail as a means of survival and healing. Research discover the unique data of healing quail eggs. With reference to quail egg and nutritional values that it contains. Tracking back historically in the scripture. Egyptians were known to quail for meat and while China researched had it that quail birds were raised as pets as singing birds that during the 11th century quails was brought from Japan to China. In addition to that research has it that one quail egg contains (9) grams antioxidants that mat help treat symptoms allergic. Main Objective for this presentation is considering the evaluation dimensions of vegetable protein sources in diet of growing and laying quails reared in a poor community in job creation and opportunity for innovation for pharmaceutical organization for commercial for wholeness consumptions. It is intended that full- life circle stages of entrepreneurship would be taken into consideration wherever possible. However, how social entrepreneurs are making the best use of technology will be investigated and documented.

Forging a new stable equilibrium that releases trapped potential; or alleviates the suffering of the targeted group and through imitation and the creation of a stable ecosystem around the equilibrium ensuring a better future of the targeted group and even the world at large.

Biography

Abraham Oluwasegun Onayiga is still a current PhD student with specialization in healing Science, Facilitation and Psychology at Interdenominational School of Theology South Africa and obtained Master of Art (Theology) with specialization in Science of religion and missiology from University of Pretoria. St Augustine college South Africa obtained Master of Philosophy in Culture and Educational Leadership (in view). Baptist theological College South Africa obtained Bachelor (Hon) in Theology. Emmanuel Alayande College of Education, in Nigeria obtained Certificate in Education with specialization in Mathematics and Economic. Educator at Ubuhle Christian School and major in Mathematics and Economic Management Science Assistant Lecturer at the Apostolic Church Seminary, Nigeria Currently a Missionary South Africa and in the apostolic Church LAWNA South Africa and Chairperson of the School Governing Body at Hlabelela Primary School, South Africa.