Take Action Now

The church is the rightful place to organize effective HIV interventions because it is the right place where people go to find love and comfort however the lack of understanding about sexual health issues such as HIV due to the negative traditional religious interpretations of the HIV condition has given room for stigma and discrimination to operate in the church therefore making it difficult for the church to entertain HIV interventions that give support to people who are living with HIV and their families. "Take Action Now" is a module developed to challenge the unfortunate attitude of stigma and discrimination being practiced in the church against people who are living with HIV. First of all, Pastors and leaders are consulted because they hold the keys to the doors of the church. This enables discussions about HIV and sexual health issues in the church to flow positively without much difficulty. After they have bought into the importance of addressing HIV intervention in the church, then direct training for leaders in the church can then be organized. This training is necessary because it enables the leadership of the churches to acquire the knowledge about HIV in its rightful context and helps them to also acquire the skills to counsel members of their congregation with facts. Secondly, Pastors and church leaders are taught how to use key bits of scriptures that demonstrate compassion as an alternative to those that are used against people who are HIV positive. Through the Take Action Now module free and confidential HIV testing centers are being opened in churches for the first time in Africa and across the UK saving many lives and giving thousands of those diagnosed as having HIV the needed treatment, care and support.

Biography

Fred Osei Annin is the Founder and CEO of Action Plus Foundation, UK and has been working in the Pastoral Ministry since 1982. He founded Action Plus Foundation, UK in 1997 to combat the unfortunate attitude of stigma and prejudice which prevents HIV intervention. His action was to reduce the spread of HIV infection within the African communities.
